BY SIMON ROBINSON

A SHAMED police inspector has been booted out of Kent Police on grounds of gross misconduct.

Dione Mayfield, from Rainham, was dismissed from the force on Thursday, July 8 – six weeks after being convicted of two drink driving and leaving the scene of an accident.

The inspector, stationed at police HQ in Maidstone, denied the charges but was found guilty of both offences at Maidstone Magistrates Court.

The court heard how Mayfield drove her Ford Focus in Bloors Lane, Rainham, on September 25, 2009, while nearly three times the drink drive limit.

She was found to have 103 microgrammes of alcohol per 100 millilitres of breath. The legal limit is 35.

Mayfield also smashed into another car in the same place on the same day and drove away, leading to a second charge of failing to stop at the scene of an accident.

During her trial, the inspector admitted getting behind the wheel while intoxicated, but insisted that a man named Jason had been driving the car at the time of the collision.

Mayfield claimed to have met the man as she came out of The Cricketers pub in Rainham High Street on September 24.

She said the pair went back to her house where they stayed up drinking until 5am.

Three hours later Mayfield said they got into her car – with Jason driving – and that he was

SHABBY: The north end of Week Street is somewhat of an eyesore admits town centre manager Bill Moss, but positive change is on the way

Watch this space: Moss expects new lease of life

A NEAR-deserted street in Maidstone's town centre is to have new life breathed into it after three new businesses decided to move in.

The north end of Week Street, which leads directly into the county town's retail centre, has five empty units formerly used as pubs, shops and megastores.

But town centre manager Bill Moss told Yourmaidstone new businesses were springing up in the road, which is currently a blot on the borough's shopping hub.

He said: "I'm the first to admit it's an eyesore. It looks a bit empty at the moment, but now there are things going on there it will be refreshing."

"A new bed shop is being fitted out and should be ready to open in the next couple of weeks. Two doors along, a Tesco Express is being fitted out and I'm guessing that could be finished by late autumn."

■ BY JOE BILL

Further into the centre, the redundant Woolworths store has now also been turned into a Poundland, while a Burmese restaurant is also due to open within the next two weeks.

Former pub The Vic, next to Maidstone East station, remains in a poor state but Mr Moss is confident that will change very soon.

He said: "The Vic is empty but that is now owned by the railway and is going to be part of a big development."

Hotel

"We don't know who they are working with yet but there are possibilities for new retail and residential developments. In one plan we have seen there was even the possibility of a hotel."

Mr Moss also revealed that next door to Poundland another new shop opening is, Deichmann Shoes – a huge brand with stores across the UK and Europe. A former charity shop remains unoccupied as does the Army and Navy Store, but Mr Moss also believes that building could also soon be changing.

He said: "That store was bought out by a developer but then the recession hit. Again, I am the first to admit it's an eyesore, but the owner is sitting on his property until things get better. I very much walk around with my eyes open and there are a few scruffy edges on that road but things are changing now."

Having lived in the area for 38 years, Mr Moss is pleased with the town centre and confident in how shops dealt with the recession.

He added: "There has been tremendous investment in Maidstone."

"We have the biggest shopping area in Kent and have more money spent on retail in Maidstone than anywhere else in the county, other than Bluewater."

Rising burglaries buck trend

HOUSE burglaries in mid Kent shot up by more than ten per cent in the last year, new statistics have shown.

Figures released by the Home Office reveal the number of reported burglaries rose from 782 to 872 between April, 2009, and March, 2010.

This is in contrast to Kent as a whole, where the number of homes burgled fell by five per cent.

The deputy area commander for mid Kent, Superintendent Andy Rabey, acknowledged the increase was a concern but was positive the force could deal with the problem.

He said: "We have dedicated extra resources to the investigation of all burglaries. We have run property marking schemes in areas that have suffered burglaries and now attend more burglary call-outs than ever.

"By far the most common type of burglary is property stolen by opportunists who have seen an open window or a door left ajar, especially at this time of year. I would urge people to keep their homes secure."

Overall figures for mid Kent show crime has fallen by 9.5 per cent with the total number recorded dropping from 21,073 to 19,066.

Supt Rabey said: "This means there were 2,007 fewer victims of crime."

Robbery fell by 18.3 per cent, criminal damage by 22 per cent and vehicle crime by 551 offences in a year – a 20 per cent decrease.

The number of serious sexual offences increased by 17.6 per cent, from 148 crimes to 174, but many of these were 'historic' offences, police say, dating as far back as the 1950s, that have only just been reported.

Drug offences were up by 6.2 per cent but Supt Rabey said this was because of a proactive approach to targeting drug dealers.

He said: "The good news is that overall crime continues to fall."

"There have been encouraging drops in criminal damage and violent crime, which I hope will reassure the people of mid Kent that their communities are safer than they have ever been."

River Festival shows it's got the Dunkirk Spirit

Celebration overcomes threats to its future

■ BY DAN COLOMBINI

HUNDREDS of boats will moor in Maidstone next weekend for the annual River Festival.

The popular one-day festival – now in its 31st year – will see more than 20,000 people pour into the county town on Saturday, July 31.

A packed programme of events has been arranged for the day, including music acts, dancers, a fireworks display, fancy dress competitions and an illuminated boat parade.

Scores of boats have also been transformed to fit this year's festival theme, the Dunkirk Evacuation, which saw 900 'little' ships rescue thousands of Allied troops from France 70 years ago.

This year's pre-event planning has gone smoothly, thanks largely to an agreement between festival organisers and the borough council to share the responsibilities.

The festival suffered a major blow in 2008 when policing charges proved too much for the volunteer-run committee, throwing the event into doubt.

Organisers managed to reduce the fee but were hit with another issue last year when new laws were introduced and the council said it would not take full responsibility for insuring the festival.

But new River Festival chairman Martin Cox

COLOURFUL: The River Festival has been condensed into one day to make it easier for families to enjoy all the activities said their deal with council bosses had secured the festival's long-term future: "The agreement with the council has saved us somewhere in the region of £10-15,000.

"The event now seems much more manageable from the committee's side and it means we can benefit from the council's expertise.

"This enables us to concentrate on providing the entertainment while the borough utilises the services at its disposal."

The festival has been reduced from two days to just one to attract more families and to make it easier for residents to do everything in a day.

Mr Cox said: "The boats and funfair will still be there for the two-days, but we want to really push the River Festival as a big family day out."

Organisers are hoping to raise somewhere in the region of £6,000 for three charities – Hospital Radio Maidstone, The 36. Benevolent Fund and the Rotary Club – through sales of the £1 River Festival programme.

If you are a musician or entertainer and would like to be involved at the River Festival please contact Martin Cox on 01622 688945.

See www.maidstoneriverfestival.com to find out more about the festival.

Hop to it to claim your early tickets

EARLY bird tickets are already on sale for next year's Hop Farm Festival.

The festival was staged at the Paddock Wood site for its third year just a fortnight ago, with Bob Dylan, Ray Davies, Van Morrison and Blondie, pictured, entertaining huge crowds.

Fresh from the success of this event, organisers have launched a limited number of early bird tickets for the 2011 festival, costing £125 for a weekend ticket including two days camping, with no booking fee.

In doing so they have announced that the festival will be staged on Friday and Saturday, July 1-2, next year.

Hop Farm promoter Vince Power said after this year's event that he felt it had found its niche, so expect music legends to again top the bill in 2011 and other smaller stages to give up-and-coming acts exposure.

He also vowed to resolve some of the problems with facilities this year that were criticised by some festival-goers forced to queue for up to an hour to get a drink from a bar or to use a ladies toilet.

Mr Power said he would work with the bar providers to make sure the problems were not repeated in 2011.

Mystery man 'didn't exist'

responsible for hitting the car in Bloors Lane.

She said the pair got into an argument over the damage, and he walked away. Mayfield, right, said she then got into the driver's seat to move the car to a safer place.

Kent Police tried to find Jason and ran DNA tests on a bottle of Courvoisier, two glasses and an ashtray that Mayfield said the pair were using, but results only showed Mayfield's DNA.

District judge Michael Kelly said Jason didn't exist.

Mayfield was sentenced to 200 hours community service, banned from driving for two years and ordered to pay £1,000 costs. She was also suspended from her position by Kent Police.

Officers assigned to find Jason said they were stunned by the force's determination to get their man. One officer, who didn't wish to be named, said: "I have worked on murder cases with less paperwork."

A Kent Police spokesman said: "Dionne Mayfield was dismissed from the force on Thursday, July 8, 2010 on grounds of gross misconduct. Effective forthwith."

Con man stole lady's cash

AN ELDERLY lady was burgled on Saturday by a con man claiming to be from the water board.

The incident occurred at her home in Kent Close, Paddock Wood, between the hours of 2.45pm and 3.15pm when a man convinced the unsuspecting lady to let him in to her flat. He then distracted her in the kitchen by running the taps and filling jugs of water.

After he had left, she found money had been removed from her handbag that was left in another room.

Police said the burglar is aged between 18 and 25, has dark brown hair and was wearing a dark coloured long sleeve top with dark trousers.

Detective Sergeant Ben Turner said: "If anyone has any information or was in Kent Close around the time of the burglary and saw someone of a similar description I would ask them to contact police.

"Please remind any older or vulnerable family members and neighbours they should never let unexpected callers in. Good advice to follow is 'Stop, Chain, Check.

"Stop and put on the door bar or chain before you open the door. Check identification. Perhaps put this on a piece of paper and stick it on the front door as a reminder. If you have any doubts about a caller or are not expecting anyone don't let them in and call police."

Town could get a new hospital

A NEW hospital could be built in Maidstone.

Plans for the new 110-bed facility, which would be called the Kent Institute of Medicine and Surgery, have been put forward by a group of 200 of the county's doctors.

It is also rumoured that a 'high calibre investor' will be brought in to back the proposal, with private hospital firm Spire Healthcare thought to be interested.

In an interview with the Laing and Buisson Health Care Market website, Spire Healthcare's finance chief Rob Roger confirmed the company had held talks over the Maidstone scheme.

He said: "We are looking at it, but that's as far as we've got. We have been in verbal discussions but it is still early days and certainly nothing has been signed.

"This is a huge development and we would have to be comfortable with the projections, how it is going to be funded and how consultants will work there."

A spokesman for the Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells NHS Trust said the project is not something that they are currently involved in.

Show of pride in Kentish ways

■ BY NICK AMES

THOUSANDS flocked to the Kent County Show at the weekend to enjoy a three-day celebration of the very best of the Garden of England.

Prize-winning animals, food and drink, and the latest in farming technology were all on display at the Detling showground during the county's biggest annual event.

Young farmers displayed livestock amid much talk about what lies ahead for the agriculture industry.

Changes in the traditional way of life for land workers were plain to see, from modern tractors to mobile horseshoe makers working from the back of a van. Farrier Phil Dunmall, from Yalding, said: "We change with the times. There's no longer a forge in every village. We come to those who need us."

The only complaint from visitors was about the traffic congestion, with some reportedly taking two hours to get out of the car park, while all traffic on leaving the arena was routed to the M2 roundabout which has several sets of traffic lights, causing further delays.

Why Farming Matters was the theme of the event, highlighting the importance of agriculture to the economy.

Farmers emphasised how their work was of continuing importance to the prosperity of rural Kent.

Sonia Purchase breeds Hereford cattle at her farm in Bossingham, between Folkestone and Canterbury.

She said: "Farming and agriculture is at the heart of Kent. It has been a way of life in the county for centuries and even in these difficult times provides jobs and a future for many."

"The cattle we breed are in quite short supply and we sell our pedigree animals across the UK, ensuring stocks continue to thrive. Agriculture is such a valuable resource to the county."

Teacher Francesca Rice is based at the North School, Ashford, which runs its own farm. "It gives the pupils the chance to learn of the relationship between the land and food," she said. Holly McNicol, 20, from Meopham, was exhibiting her rabbit, Domino, which won first prize in a small animals category.

"I help with a school's young farmers' club," she said. "Young people need to know about the importance of the land in the 21st century."

The eco-village emphasised how environmentally friendly techniques can help the countryside to be preserved as well as resources exploited in a sustainable manner.

It included food, children's toys, as well as solar and wind-powered technologies.

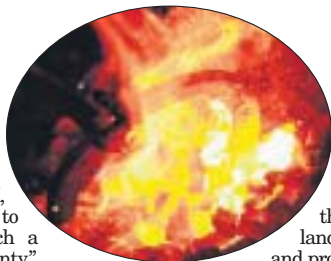

Vicky Whitlock organised this part of the event. She said: "While a lot of farmers wouldn't necessarily call themselves green, they do understand how the land needs to be used properly and protected."

Crime prevention is a winning sport

ASBO kids are being helped to turn their lives around thanks to an award-winning sports project set up at a gym in Maidstone.

Youngsters at risk of becoming involved in crime are being encouraged to channel their energy into sport at the Zeroth Active Zone gym in Boughton Lane.

The project, put together by Maidstone Borough Council's Community Safety Unit and KCC's Youth Offending Service, has already had a dozen teenagers take part in physical exercise programmes as a diversion from crime.

Bullying

Antisocial behaviour officer Alan Newman spotted a lack of activities for possible repeat offenders aged between 11 and 17.

Mr Newman said: "One 12-year-old who joined the programme had become a nuisance in his neighbourhood, partly as a result of verbal abuse and bullying he received because he was overweight.

"Although he was excluded from school and coming to the attention of police, housing and local authority believed he had potential and he was nominated to the Zeroth Project.

"He now attends school regularly and has taken part in fundraising activities to help disadvantaged youngsters in his neighbourhood."

Mr Newman added that not one of the 12 participants has offended since completing the programme.

He said: "The Zeroth Project is making a real difference to the lives of young people and demonstrates why it is worthy of receiving this accolade from the Community Partnership Awards."

Tragic death of 'angel with the Honda wings'

■ BY JOE BILL

THE devastated family and friends of a mother-of-three have paid tribute to their loved one after she was killed in a motorcycle crash in West Malling last week.

Immediate relatives of Jane Wilson, from Rochford in Essex, issued touching statements through police after the 46-year-old died on the A20, London Road, on Sunday, July 4.

Youngest son Peter said his mum was as "an angel with Honda wings."

Jane's mother, Greta Estall added: "Jane was a very caring person. She took in all the waifs and strays.

"She helped me enormously over the last eight months which have been extremely difficult and I don't know what I will do without her."

Eldest son Christopher also paid tribute to the psychiatric nurse who cared for geriatric patients.

He said: "There are no words that can do justice to her. All the pets we've got are rescued and she rescued so many people too. I want to carry on what she started."

Jane's closest friend Gary said: "Jane was one of the safest riders on the road. She was highly qualified and a trained instructor and observer.

"I've lost my best friend. She was my wingman. I'll never look in my mirror and see her again. I miss her so much.

"She was just in the wrong place at the wrong time and as a result, she sadly lost her life. God bless Jane."

Jane leaves behind children Lucy, 23, Christopher, 21, and Peter, 19, and three grandchildren, Chloe, Zach and five-month old Sophie.

The family have announced that Jane's funeral will be held at Rochford Congregational Church on Friday, July 23.

The family have requested that any donations should go to Essex Air Ambulance and also thanked Kent Police and those who helped at the scene of the incident.

QUESTION & ANSWER

MICHELLE PARKS

Q Tell us a bit about yourself.

A I am a 31-year-old, married, mum of two daughters – Ellie and Hattie aged five and three. I work part time for Santander Bank and spend the rest of my time ferrying the girls to all sorts of school activities. Because I spend a large chunk of my life acting as a my children's taxi driver, I like catching up with friends every couple of weeks for a few drinks – minus the children.

Q How did you get involved in the Mumsnet Carbon Trust Footprint Challenge?

A I've been using Mumsnet since I was pregnant with my second child and found the information and advice really helpful.

I saw a forum on the Carbon Challenge run by the Carbon Trust and thought it would be interesting to try. I have no option but to drive my girls to and from school because of where we live.

Ellie is keen on recycling and sorting everything in the right bin while I cook – I think I have a budding environmentalist on my hands. She is just finishing reception at school and apparently now knows everything related to the environment – so we have to follow strict recycling rules set by her. I thought it would be an ideal experiment for her to participate in and for me to be able to understand what affects our carbon footprint and how we can find ways to reduce it.

Q What does the challenge involve?

A Myself and three other mums from around the UK are currently taking part in the challenge. At the beginning, the Carbon Trust got in touch with us to calculate my family's carbon footprint. I had to read my electricity and gas metres, write down what we ate and drank, how many miles we drove to school... everything that emits carbon.

We have been taking part in a number of challenges to reduce our footprint – for example, in the second week, I had to look for the Carbon Reduction Label whilst doing my shopping, as it indicates which companies have made a commitment to reducing their emissions. We have also been taught a series of tricks to reduce our footprint – did you know you could save a lot of energy by boiling your potatoes with the lid on?

The challenge has shown me that by making really small changes in my life, I can make a positive impact on the environment (and my gas and electricity bills have come down too).

Q Why did you want to get involved?

A I thought my family would have a high footprint, so I wanted to know what ours was compared to the average person.

I also feel green issues will become a greater priority for my family as time goes by, as natural resources are being depleted and we need to find ways to preserve what we have.

Q How have you been getting on?

A Really well. The challenges have been simple but effective and we discovered that some of the food we eat has a higher carbon footprint than we expected so we can now think about alternatives. I was really surprised when I found out that we had a higher footprint during half term compared to the school run weeks. Discovering the Carbon Reduction Label means I can shop with that in mind (although it would be great if more companies could join the scheme as it's not on many products at the moment.)

Q Why do you think others should take on the challenge?

A We need to think about the impact our actions have on the environment. Reducing simple things like waste and energy use, recycling more, using public transport when possible or car sharing can really help preserve the planet for our children.

Q Do you think the challenge will have a lasting effect on you and your family?

A Yes, it has definitely made us more aware of our carbon footprint. We didn't know that red meat has a much higher footprint than white meat – so we'll take this into account when shopping in the future.

Q & A

Electronic tag mix-up settled by court visit

A PHONE number mix-up saw a young man brought back before Maidstone Magistrates' Court.

Lewis O'Brien, 20, of Cambridge Crescent, Maidstone, went before the bench to explain why he had not made himself available to be fitted with an electronic tag.

The court heard how court officials called at his flat but O'Brien did not answer. Embarrassingly, when O'Brien's home number was checked it was found to be that of the local Crown Prosecution Service office.

Catherine Bond, defending, said O'Brien did not answer the door because people had been threatening him and he didn't have a mobile phone.

The problem was solved when a friend let O'Brien use his phone and the young man was finally tagged.

We'll meet again as Dame Vera returns to the show

SWEETHEART: Forces favourite Dame Vera Lynn

■ BY JOE BILL

FORCES Sweetheart Dame Vera Lynn will be the special guest at the War and Peace Show.

The wartime singer is due to attend the annual Paddock Wood show, which starts today (Wednesday) as it celebrates its 28th anniversary year. The 93-year-old will spend time with the many war veterans also expected to attend.

More than 100,000 history buffs are expected to flock to what is widely regarded as the world's largest military vehicles festival.

Adults and children alike will be able to enjoy the 4,000 military vehicles on display, as well as witness re-enactments of battle scenes.

Dame Vera said she was delighted to be attending once again (on Friday) and praised the event for holding a free schools day for children to get a taste of history.

She said: "I think this is a wonderful idea. It's very important that children learn about what happened 70 years ago, and by seeing the vehicles and equipment used in the war they can get a much clearer understanding of that."

Alongside the helicopter flyovers and tank manoeuvres there will be authentic 1940s live music, dances and fashion shows to help transport visitors back in time to a classic 'spirit of the Blitz' knees up.

The RAF Red Arrows will perform a spectacular aerobatic display tomorrow (Thursday), but even they might be outdone by the flyover on Sunday, where the Spirit of Kent Spitfire and a Messerschmitt Bf109 take to the skies above the Hop Farm.

On Friday, organiser Rex Cadman will be donating a cheque for £5,000 to the Dame Vera Lynn Trust for Children with Cerebral Palsy.

He said: "Education is a very important part of what the War and Peace Show is all about."

"We are glad to be able to make a contribution towards Dame Vera's Trust, partly because it's an excellent cause badly in need of funds, and partly out of respect for a woman who did so much to lift morale during the war."

Evening entertainment includes two of the UK's most popular jazz, swing and jive bands, Blue Harlem and The Jive Aces.

Second World War veterans no longer have to pay for entry, but should contact the Hop Farm in advance with special rates also applying to carers and families. The show runs from today until Sunday, July 25. For more information on ticket prices, visit www.thehopfarm.co.uk.

High flyers lured by academy push

■ BY MARIJKE COX

SOME of Kent's highest achieving schools seem destined to break away from local authority control as they push to become academies.

Eleven of those rated "outstanding" by Ofsted have already started formal proceedings to become academies, just weeks after education secretary Michael Gove invited all schools to apply. Subject to parliamentary approval of the academies bill, the schools could change as soon as September.

Schools converting to academies will be given more independence and responsibility, despite remaining publicly funded. That includes the ability to set their own pay for staff, have greater control of budgets and freedom from the National Curriculum.

New figures show 95 schools in Kent and nine in Medway have expressed an interest in becoming academies. Unlike the Labour academies policy, which focused on poor-performing schools, high-achieving primaries and secondaries, including grammars, are being encouraged by the new Government to convert.

These schools will be offered a one-off £25,000 payment in the form of a conversion grant. But County Hall officials and education experts don't like it. A report to be discussed by KCC's education department touched on the impact the new academy policy could have on funding and equality.

It states: "New academies should receive the same level of per-pupil funding as local authority maintained schools. However, new academies will also receive a share of the local authority budget that provides for central services and will receive substantial top-up funding to meet additional responsibilities."

The report goes on to explain how the Government grant reduction from KCC's budget as each school moved from its control was supposed not to leave taxpayers out of pocket, but this would not happen.

"It had previously been assumed the amount deducted from Kent's budget equated to the additional grant paid to the academy. This is not the case. There is therefore an additional cost to the public purse, currently met from central government funds, for each converting school. On average, the total paid to an academy is over six times the amount deducted from KCC."

The report said the policy was not creating a "level playing field" for schools. Last month, KCC leader Cllr Paul Carter urged head teachers to exercise "extreme caution" before agreeing to become academies because not enough information had been released.

And Andrew Somers, head of Hartsdown Technology College in Margate, said the county would have a three-tier system after the scrapping of Building Schools for the Future (BSF) programme.

But independent education adviser Peter Read said it had gone further than that. "There will actually be four categories – grammars, new BSF schools, those that go without and, the fourth, academies," he said. "This means the schools that are not grammars, not refurbished, or not academies, will be at the bottom of the pile."

Teacher suspensions double in a year

THE number of teachers suspended from classroom duties in Kent has more than doubled in just a year.

Figures obtained through a Freedom of Information Act request to County Hall revealed how one teacher a week is being suspended from primary and secondary schools in Kent.

In 2008-09, the total for the year was 19, but this more than doubled in 2009-10, with 43 being temporarily taken out of the classroom. Reasons for suspensions included child protection issues, which can range from allegations of verbal abuse, unreasonable force against a pupil and, in worst cases, indecent assault.

Almost £300,000 was spent in 2009-10 providing cover for those suspended, with £260,648 the previous year and in 2007-08 – where the number of suspended teachers was 31 – £265,053. The figures did not include schools in Medway, which was unable to provide details. A Kent County Council spokesman said the authority made it clear schools should avoid suspension wherever possible, but sometimes it was unavoidable.

"Child protection suspensions are necessary when an allegation is made against a member of staff," he said. We need to make sure the allegation is fully investigated without the member of staff being at work.

But teachers' unions say the majority of investigations are later dropped and there have been cases of false allegations by pupils.

Marian Darke, regional secretary for the National Union of Teachers (NUT), said she was surprised by the figures and criticised the suspension policy.

"We believe it is a problem where the tendency is to suspend teachers first, then carry out an investigation later," she said.

"The vast majority of cases are dropped and the allegations unfounded. It seems they are guilty until proven innocent."

Ms Darke said allegations can be distressing for teachers, which can lead to many not returning to the classroom.

"When it is seen that a member of staff is not at school, rumours spread and it makes it difficult for teachers to come back, even if they are innocent," she said. "The situation needs to be handled better."

Of the teachers 43 suspended in 2009-10, eight have returned to the school, 18 have not and 17 investigations are on-going.

The KCC spokesman admitted cases were often dropped: "Reaching a conclusion that an allegation is false is rare, mainly because finding proof is difficult. It can often be the word of a child against that of a teacher."

Ex-con's fight to put offenders on right path

A NOTORIOUS bank robber who once rubbed shoulders with the Krays is to address the Government on plans to create 'rehabilitation villages' for offenders.

Bobby Cummines, who turned his back on the criminal world after 13 years in jail, has produced the proposals in response to the UK's high re-offending rate and overcrowded prisons.

And despite his background, the former criminal – convicted of possession of a sawn-off shotgun when aged just 16 – is determined to help others find a way out of crime.

As chief executive of Unlock, a Snodland-based charity helping people with previous convictions, and as a former advisor to Tony Blair's Government, Mr Cummines thinks this is possible on a large scale.

He said: "I know what it's like to live that life. I was in prison for 13 years. For some of these youngsters, you send them to jail and they come out trained in organised crime."

"My recommendation to the new Government is our Diamond Project, which puts all organisations needed to reduce offending in one place, at the heart of the community."

"I want to not only make sure they stay out of prison, but get them qualified in a trade and keep them off the dole."

The ex-con, who lives in Ashford, plans to use private investment to build 28-acre centres in cities across the country – communities within themselves – with learning and training facilities, shops, restaurants, counselling services, police stations and, for the more vulnerable people, accommodation.

Eddie, 12, sails to national victory

SUTTON Valence pupil Eddie Bridle had cause for celebration after sailing to victory in the 2010 National Mirror Dinghy Championship.

Eddie, 12, and his racing partner Chris Rush, 18, battled against tides and strong winds to come first in three of the six races at Brightlingsea Sailing Club.

The final results showed that the boys' consistent sailing had left them two points ahead of their nearest rivals.

This was the first time that the boys had competed together after Chris, current European Mirror Class Champion, spotted Eddie's talents and invited him to help crew the dinghy named "Complete and Utter Chaos."

The youngster has been sailing since the age of six with his father Graham and last year the duo finished fifth in the competition's much faster cherub class.

This year's performance could make the team prime contenders for the World Championships. However, the boys may face a few logistical problems as they are held in Perth at Christmas.

Mr Bridle said: "Eddie is still very young to be competing in this type of event. Most people enjoy success from the age of 16, so there is plenty of scope and opportunity ahead."

Bionic ear gives pupils the lowdown on loud music

■ BY DAN COLOMBINI

PUPILS from Aylesford School and Sports College will be all ears this Monday when 'the world's largest lobe' drops in.

The 2010 Bionic Ear Roadshow, ran by the national Deafness Research UK charity, will visit the school to educate students on the importance of their hearing using an interactive performance featuring a model of the human ear that is more than 22 foot long.

Students will learn how the ear works, and will get the opportunity to experience what it is like to have high-frequency hearing loss.

They will also play "Guess that tune" to enable them to appreciate how people with cochlear implants hear everyday music.

With the emergence of MP3 players and their overwhelming popularity, particularly amongst younger people, Vivienne Michael, chief executive of Deafness Research UK warned that many people risk causing long-term damage to their hearing.

She said: "While the revolution in MP3 and phone technology has given us all the benefit of music on the move, an unwelcome side effect is we are pumping up the volume into our ears and at a far earlier age than before."

"The fear is that many of us are 'downloading deafness' and playing music at such high volume that we risk permanent deafness and tinnitus far earlier than would be expected simply as a result of old age."

"One of the key messages the Bionic Ear Show is taking to schools is not to stop children using MP3 players, but to listen to their favourite sounds safely. Turning the volume down slightly is such a simple thing to do and will enable today's generation to continue to enjoy their music for years to come."

HEAR HERE: The Bionic Ear Roadshow demonstrated the dangers of listening to loud music through headphones

A recent survey revealed that more than a third of 16 to 34-year-olds listen to their MP3 players for more than an hour a day. It also showed that 54 per cent of people were not aware that their hearing can be damaged from over-exposure to loud music.

Anyone who would like the Roadshow to visit their school, community group or event should contact Laura Ganpot at Deafness Research UK on 020 7679 8951 or at bionicearshow@deafnessresearch.org.uk.

Many roles of our motorbike police teams

NOT everyone is looking forward to the long hot days of summer.

For the Kent Police motorcycle team it isn't the most comfortable time of year, dressed in thick, black, biker's leathers and crash helmets.

But comfort isn't top of their list of priorities – whereas the safety of the public is, which means they have to go out in all weathers even if they are baking hot in the summer and freezing cold in the winter.

Kent Police has a central motorcycle team who are sent to whichever part of the county they are needed most and motorcyclists are based at stations around Kent.

Police motorcycles are needed for many functions from policing traffic at major events to attending road accidents. They are able to get through traffic jams quickly to provide assistance to those in need.

Escort

They are often used to tackle speeding or inconsiderate drivers, having both marked and unmarked motorbikes which are fitted with video recording equipment which can later be used in court.

The motorcycle team sometimes provides VIP escorts. In the past they have escorted the late Queen Mother to Walmer Castle and Prince Charles and Prince Andrew during visits to the county. They also escort visiting heads of state and if required provide funeral escorts to servicemen and women who have died serving their country.

They can also be called on to escort high value or abnormal loads. They recently escorted lorries carrying turbine blades to a wind farm on the Romney Marsh as they travelled along the motorway. They are also called upon for the fast delivery of forensic evidence from crime scenes.

PC Dave Greenwood, from the central motorcycle team, said: "One of our aims is also to educate the public regarding driving or riding. If we see a motorist who we think needs advising about their driving we will stop them and offer them advice. This could prevent an accident in the future.

"We have an enforcement role which sees us stopping speeding drivers. We also deal with drivers who are breaking the law in other ways, perhaps driving without insurance or driving dangerously."

■ BY JANE BARLOW

The team works to reduce the number of people in the county who are killed or seriously injured in road accidents. It does this by tackling speeders, those who are not wearing seat belts, careless or dangerous drivers and others who use their mobile phones while at the wheel.

The bikes they use are BMW R1200RTPs although the force also has Yamaha 450cc Enduro off-road motorbikes for which officers are given special training to ride. These are used to target off-road bikers who are causing a nuisance or breaking the law, other off-road vehicles and to search large areas of the countryside for missing people.

PC Greenwood said: "We go to areas where there have been complaints and stop people using off-road vehicles. If they are driving or riding illegally we can issue them with a warning notice, which means if they are caught again we have the power to seize their vehicle. We prosecute offenders if they do not have valid insurance and are using their vehicles on a road or in a public place. We also give safety advice, as these riders are often not wearing crash helmets or protective clothing."

The motorcycle team also runs a project called Bikesafe. This involves officers providing a one-day training course for motorcyclists, giving them tips and advice on safer riding.

Time for women to become Bishops

THE Archbishop of Canterbury's right-hand man has welcomed a decision by the Church of England's ruling body to allow the ordination of female bishops.

Bishop of Dover Trevor Willmott – who runs the Canterbury diocese in Dr Rowan Williams' absence – was a member of the steering committee that led discussions during this week's historic meeting of the General Synod.

He told KOS Media the ordination of female bishops was the next logical step following previous decisions to allow women to become priests and deacons.

"Everyone knows I'm in favour of women bishops," said Bishop Trevor. "But I'm also in favour of keeping the Church together, which is a difficult task shared by most members of the synod."

"As far as I'm concerned the Christian faith says there is no distinction between male and female, so God is calling women to share in the ministry of the church.

"It therefore seems right and proper that they should be allowed to become bishops, and perhaps we should have been clearer on this issue when the decisions were made regarding female priests and deacons in 1987 and 1992."

"I always knew it was something we would come to eventually, and now we have."

The draft law approved by the General Synod must now receive the green light from the majority of the Church's 44 dioceses.

It must then return to the synod and receive a two-thirds majority vote, before receiving parliamentary approval and finally the Royal Assent.

Traditionalist Anglicans who opposed the move have been given minimal concessions, but leading figures in the Church say it is now inevitable that dissatisfied members will leave.

Are police breaking law in fight against under-age drinking?

How do we avoid the drinkers then?

Licensing officer Neil Barnes said: "... drinking is still allowed where it is permitted, such as in bars and pubs. The object is to allow people to enjoy themselves without being confronted by intoxicated individuals in the street."

The first sentence is convoluted, redundant and patronising official speak but the second needs explaining. How do we escape the people who get intoxicated in bars and pubs – Mr Barnes' legitimate places – and then stagger home through the streets. Surely they are just as much of a problem?

Of course authority needs to be changed

Hmmmm. A bit of "they would say that wouldn't they". Very few quangos like the Kent Police Authority (KPA) vote to allow their members to be elected.

Given much of the KPA is KCC councillors it's unclear why KPA staffing costs are £1.5million.

We seem to have more quangos within quangos and too often different divisions of KCC speaking out in favour of KCC policy.

As well the issue of elected police officials isn't just for the KPA but also for an elected Chief Constable and Directorate – as in the USA.

Tom Betts lets fly about his distaste for seagulls as he prepares for the coming of Gullmageddon...

I USED to think seagulls were funny, and perhaps even a little bit cool in a strange sort of way.

To me the birds seemed to have a rebellious attitude that made me laugh. I admired their pluck – but that was before I moved to Thanet.

In recent years, things have gone a little too far. I am certain this country will soon be in the grip of these beasts, a trend it will be hard to reverse.

We may be on the verge of Gullmageddon and the UK's first seagull-related death is on the way, just you mark my words.

Residents across the isle will no doubt sympathise with my views as the gulls tear their way through rubbish sacks and spread litter across the streets – a story I have reported on in the past.

The noise is also another negative.

Every morning I am woken up by an ASBO gull flock who camp out on our roof with little more in their tiny minds than causing as much racket as possible for hours on end.

Not fun when you're nursing a hangover or in desperate need of sleep.

No, their noise is not the pleasant twittering and trilling of other birds, but an assault on the eardrums that even double-glazing cannot halt.

The shrill screeching and squawking is nice when heard every so often on a day out at the seaside but not every single day.

If there is a story in your area you think we should be covering contact the news editor, Simon Robinson, on 01303 817185 or email him on the details above. housing benefit by 10 per cent for people claiming jobseeker's allowance for 12 months or more would lead to real terms cuts of up to 50 per cent in disposable income for a significant proportion of the nation's 4.7 million housing benefit claimants.

In the south east, 21,849 people would be at risk of homelessness, with single, childless claimants hardest hit because they would not be entitled to any other income support from the state – other than their jobseeker's allowance cash. They would be forced to make up the shortfall in their housing benefit with a substantial proportion of their sole money, which is worth just £65.45 a week.

Even if tenants do manage to pay their rent, the extra expense could plunge people into poverty and severe debt. The change in rules would also mean that low income groups would effectively be priced out of prosperous areas like London and the south east – and away from jobs.

The 10 per cent cut would equate to a 53 per cent drop in disposable income for people claiming the maximum £350 a week allowance.

The federation, which represents England's housing associations, fears people will struggle to pay their rent and fall into arrears, with most being evicted and ending up homeless. As they would be deemed 'at fault' for their eviction, they would be classed as intentionally homeless and would not be entitled to emergency accommodation from the local authority.

The new rules could also make vulnerable people easy prey for loan sharks.

In essence the proposals mean that those who – despite their best efforts – have failed to find work after 12 months will be pushed out of prosperous areas. Not only would this increase unemployment, but it would add to the concentration of social problems in deprived, marginalised areas.

Simon Nunn, head of region for the National Housing Federation

Who can afford to live in Britain?

I campaign for affordable living, which in dystopian Britain is becoming impossible, where only bankers, corporate, finance and useless bits of the state sector are "worth" rescuing.

Nobody can justify costs of up to £20 million per new school, was that creative accounting or genuine? Overcosting has beset the state sector and for me is no better than cost-ineffective incompetence. I would never let my budget over-run the way state sector projects do. Typically the cost of the Olympics has run away, and made Lord Coe & Co. very wealthy. The Dome cost taxpayers billions and was handed to corporate contacts of the government with no mandate from us. What return are we getting for the exorbitant taxes and revenue-raising target and bonus culture? Kids need more than new equipment and new buildings.

Have a look at the rapt attention and joy of slum children when they get a chance to learn with less than what is considered basic for European or US students.

We have had public funding squandered, too many sticky fingered folk along the way have got the best of the cash, and not much is left over for universal services that did England proud a couple of generations ago.

Students have a lot of harsh realities to face up sooner or later. Labour lost respect and trust and the Con-Dem coalition is busy setting up new quangos and throwing health services into the insurance and privatised management marketplace.

Hard lesson for those involved with BSF

Headteachers at 28 Kent secondary schools, eight special schools and four referral centres were devastated to learn that plans to rebuild their schools under the Building Schools for the Future programme had been scrapped.

The vast number of hours spent by heads and governors negotiating with officials are wasted. The hours of planning by staff to develop new methods for teaching and learning using opportunities created by purpose-designed premises will be consigned to the scrapheap.

Some special schools are required to admit children with complex physical and learning needs, but will now find it impossible to cater for these unless alternative funding can be found.

Also spare a thought for KCC officers who have worked tirelessly through the mass of red tape imposed on them, to try and ensure the best for our schools.

For the following schools in Thanet – Clarendon House Grammar, Chatham House Grammar, Foreland Special, Hartsdown Technology College, Hereson, Laleham Gap (Special), Northwood Centre, St Anthony's (Special), Stone Bay (Special) and Ursuline College; and in Gravesend – Gravesend Boys and Girls Grammars, Meopham, and St George's CofE, along with Portal House (Special) in Dover, the shock was so much greater. For in these schools building plans have nearly all been finalised and construction due to begin in the near future.

They will now have to compete for students with the gleaming new premises of those schools who have benefited from BSF.

Hartsdown is not alone in Thanet in having poor buildings and now little prospect of these being eased.

Eight newer academies already operational or in the planning stage whose replacement buildings have not begun (at an average cost of some 40 per cent more than mainstream schools), are to have any plans reviewed in the summer.

It would, however, be bizarre if many of these were upheld, as new academies converting from mainstream schools join them on an equal basis in September with no prospect of new buildings. This is a sorry end to a project that promised so much, but it is important to realise what has been achieved.

KCC leader Cllr Paul Carter has taken a personal interest in attracting maximum capital expenditure to Kent, which historically had low levels of investment in school buildings. His drive and vision means we now have new schools worth some half a billion pounds, either completed or in construction. These include all other secondary and special schools in Gravesham and Thanet through BSF (most of which are close to completion), nine academies, and six secondary schools built under separate PFI funding.

Parents in many parts of Kent will be aware of other major investments in new or replacement buildings for schools of all types.

Whatever the future holds, these remain and nearly 20 per cent of secondary schools will have been completely or substantially rebuilt; an impressive record of investment.

Whether this purge was needed in full is for others to pronounce on. I only know it must be wrong to put part of the proceeds towards the bribe to persuade mainstream schools to become academies, with another portion going to start up free schools that will often be set up to suit self-interest groups who have little interest in the education of the majority.

Team have the Hart to rescue us from danger

■ BY MARIJKE COX

A CREW of paramedics specially trained to deliver life-saving treatment at the heart of dangerous situations has started work in Kent.

The 40-strong Hazardous Area Response Team (HART) will work closely with other emergency services at the centre of major incidents, where previously they would have been restricted to the sidelines.

Chief executive of the South East Coast Ambulance Service NHS Trust (SECamb), Paul Sutton, said it is a valuable addition.

"As an emergency service, SECamb is of course already trained and experienced in expertly dealing with major incidents and this will continue," he said. "However, the introduction of HART enhances that experience and capability further still."

Traditionally, ambulance crews relied on firefighters to make an area safe before they could access what is known as the "hot zone" or inner cordon – potentially dangerous situations, such as fire or chemical threats.

It meant paramedics from SECamb were unable to get to patients until it was deemed safe. In other cases, ambulance staff had to wait for the patients – in some cases needing life-saving care – to be brought to them by firefighters.

BRAVE RESCUERS: Members of Hart are trained to attend to casualties in a number of hazardous situations

But following the terror attacks on London on July 7, 2005, where ambulance crews were able to work at the centre of the incident where there was no contamination, health chiefs nationwide began to roll out the HART initiative, funded by the Department of Health.

In Kent, the team of clinicians, who are based at Brookfields Industrial Estate in Ashford, have undergone intensive preparation.

As well as training in breathing apparatus and gas-tight chemical suits, each member of the team received lessons in urban search and rescue and working at heights.

The crew, who now also form the ambulance service's maritime incident response team, will use specialist vehicles, including off-road 4x4s and a state-of-the-art command vehicle.

Matthew England, SECamb's HART manager, said the new team will significantly enhance the service at major incidents across Kent, Sussex and Surrey.

"It will allow patients who are trapped, or in areas previously deemed unsafe for ambulance staff to enter, the opportunity to receive clinical care at a much earlier stage than has been previously possible," he said.

"Fire crews will of course still perform their vital role, but HART clinicians will be able to remove patients from smoke-filled environments, for example, bringing high-quality care to those who urgently require it."

When not responding to HART calls, the team will provide additional support with two single response vehicles and carry out a rigorous training schedule.

Andy Parr, head of emergency preparedness at SECamb, said the initiative will influence what happens to many patients involved in serious incidents.

He added: "The SECamb HART members have been working very hard over the past months to develop new skills to help in this new, exciting and necessary role."

Parents hit by children's debt

DEBT-ridden youngsters who depend on their parents to bail them out have been blamed for an increase in bankruptcy among over-55s.

According to the Consumer Credit Counselling Service (CCCS), mums and dads who pay off their children's student loans or help them onto the property ladder by providing money for deposits are risking insolvency themselves.

The charity says that 16.1 per cent of those who went bankrupt in Kent last year were over 55, compared to just 15.1 per cent nationally.

Equity release manager Tom Moloney said families should seek advice before deciding how to tackle large debts: "Parents are providing a lot more support to their children, but in many cases this is not manageable and they end up in serious financial trouble themselves."

"There should be nothing wrong with mums and dads wanting to help their children, but both sides should get expert advice first to make sure the resources are there to carry the debt."

To tackle the rising trend of parents going bankrupt, the CCCS has launched the subsidiary firm CCCS Equity Release to provide free advice to people with financial problems. Equity release allows homeowners to release money from a property worth at least £60,000, but is only available for over-55s and is usually only considered as a last resort.

Mr Moloney said: "You're never going to be able to stop the bank of mum and dad, but we're here to make sure it runs okay."

The CCCS runs a free debt counselling service at www.cccs.co.uk or call 0800 138111, 8am-8pm, Monday to Friday.

Meet the monks at heart of town

TOTALLY MONKED

Tuesday, July 27,
High Street, Rochester

VISITORS to Rochester will be transported back in time next week when history comes to life on the High Street.

Shoppers could bump into a medieval monk on Tuesday as Rochester Cathedral and Medway Council celebrate the town's monastic heritage. Totally Monked is a fascinating free event which gives visitors and residents alike the chance to find out more about Rochester's colourful history.

Following the success of the Tudor Festivities last year, another day of educational family fun has been arranged to shed light on Rochester's past. Totally Monked is an interactive trail which gives people the opportunity to meet the monks in person.

The trail guides followers around the town, revealing Rochester's monastic and Norman heritage on the way and guiding participants to some very special locations. Five monks will set themselves up in the town and will each demonstrate some ancient skills and crafts.

Find out more about trades such as wine-making and bee-keeping. The beautiful, flowing art of calligraphy will also be demonstrated as the monks reveal some of the ways that people made their living in medieval times.

Those who follow the trail can collect an activity card from the cathedral welcome desk or the first monk they find. Simply collect a stamp from each monk, and when all five stamps have been received, the holder will receive a goodie bag.

Take home an unusual souvenir by having a monastic family portrait taken in the Cloister Garth, or try your hand at brass rubbing and follow the Norman trails.

There will also be guided tours of the monastery on which the present cathedral building was founded, in this intriguing event which is supported by the new BBC campaign, Hands on History.

Full of fun activities for all the family, Totally Monked runs from 11am to 5pm. For more information visit www.rochestercathedral.org.

Anyone interested in history has a rare chance to see one of the county's national treasures during the event. From Monday to next Wednesday, a priceless manuscript will be on display in the Cathedral Crypt for the first time in six years.

Textus Roffensis was written by a monk in 1123 AD and contains the first written record of the English language.

Believed to have inspired the Magna Carta, the document is in two parts and was bound together some time after 1300.

In the first section, a collection of Anglo-Saxon legislation – the first written laws since Roman times – can be seen, from the conversion of King Aethelberht of Kent (circa 604 AD) to the coronation charter of King Henry I (1100 AD). The barons who drafted the Magna Carta during the next century were influenced by the document, which is usually kept in an archive by Medway Council.

The second part is described as a memorandum book and is the oldest and most precious of the cathedral's registers. In 2007, the British Library named Textus Roffensis as one of the country's national treasures.

The document's full title is the Textus de Ecclesia Roffensi per Ernulfum episcopum, which means the Book of the Church of Rochester through Bishop Ernulf. Textus Roffensis will be on display from 1-5pm on Monday, 10am to 5pm on Tuesday and 10am to 2pm on Wednesday. Admission is free.

Regain youthful looks

Churchill and Lockmeadow Clinics

HEADED by Dr. Ravi Vibhuti, CMG Lifecare is able to provide the latest cosmetic treatments. Once the domain of Harley Street, these treatments are now available in Medway and Maidstone in Kent and at affordable prices

Naturally, we all want to look young and maintain our age. Until now, if you wanted to reshape and re-sculpt your face – most notably the chin or cheeks that have become hollow as a result of ageing – implants or fat transplant by surgical means were the only option. However, not many of us want to change the way we look through surgery, we just want to slow down the ageing process.

Over the years your skin becomes thinner, loses its elasticity and its full, firm youthful appearance starts to wrinkle. This is a result of the ageing process or damage by the sun, smoking or excessive consumption of alcohol.

A loss of fat tissue and skin volume can make your face look thin and narrow, which may result in you looking older than you are.

Fortunately, the newer natural collagen fillers, including Juvederm, Radiesse, Restylane, Teosyl and Sculptra etc use minimally-invasive needle procedures carried out by medical aesthetic practitioners, and can be the perfect solution to taking years off you.

This can help to rediscover sexy cheekbones and restore smooth skin without resorting to the surgeon's knife.

Facial fillers have now become the modern artistry of cosmetic physicians who redefine the face and enhance the cheeks, creating a more sculpted look and the much desired "triangle-shaped" face.

Unlike surgical options, injectable collagens can either provide gradual or instant natural-looking results through less invasive treatments.

The most common side effects of the use of injectables include bleeding, tenderness, redness, bruising or swelling at the site of the injection. These effects last, on average, 2-6 days.

PEPPA PIG

Saturday, July 24, & Sunday, July 25, Orchard Theatre, Dartford

CHILDREN are invited to join in the fun when popular TV character Peppa Pig celebrates her birthday.

The BAFTA award-winning animated series has delighted children across Europe and now she is making the leap from the television screen to the live stage. After a brief tour last autumn, Peppa Pig's Party is back on the road for a much-bigger tour and the puppet version is proving to be a big hit with young audiences.

Puppetry consultant Nigel Plaskitt has worked on Spitting Image and many films, such as Labyrinth and various Muppets movies, so the puppet incarnations were in good hands.

Today is a very special day because it's Peppa Pig's birthday and all her friends are invited to come to her party. Her younger brother George, Suzy Sheep, Danny Dog and Emily Elephant will all be joining in the fun in this captivating production which boasts brand-new songs and plenty of oinks.

Tickets cost £15.50 for adults, £13.50 for children and £54 for families of four. Book online at www.orchardtheatre.co.uk or call the box office on 01322 220000.

METALWORK EXHIBITION

Saturday, July 24, to Sunday, October 3, Rochester Art Gallery & Craft Case, Rochester

WOMEN will be showing their mettle in a new group exhibition of by seven contemporary female makers.

Taking their inspiration from a wide range of sources, such as nature and the urban landscape, the exhibitors have created elegant forms, enamelled drawings and fascinating objects. They have also been inspired by the historical and domestic contexts of the materials, allowing them to pursue domestic, sculptural and narrative themes in their work.

Using the arts of metalwork and silversmithing, the makers have given some contemporary perspectives on techniques commonly used with their material, along with the qualities and values associated with it.

Exhibitors include Danish, London-based metalsmith Ane Christenson, who likes to explore the boundaries between function and sculptural form, and Northern Irish silversmith Suzanne Wall whose work looks at ideas of preciousness.

On Saturday, September 4, artist Kate Samuels will lead a free family workshop in print, drawing and mark making. Places must be booked in advance on 01634 338319.

Admission to the exhibition is free. To find out more visit www.medway.gov.uk/arts.

GORDON GILTRAP

Thursday, July 22,

FANS of guitar music should not miss the chance to see innovative musician Gordon Giltrap play in Medway.

With more than 40 years' experience in the business, Giltrap has become a highly versatile player who can straddle various styles, to the delight of his many fans all over the world. Now one of our finest guitarists, he counts players as diverse as Hank Marvin, Pete Townsend, Bert Jansch and John Williams among his influences.

Giltrap's outstanding ability has attracted much praise from his peers, including Queen guitarist Brian May, who once described Giltrap as "one of the elite few who truly have become legendary in their field in their own lifetime".

Giltrap has won a coveted Ivor Novello award and released more than 25 albums. He scored a hit single with Heartsong, which was later used as the theme tune for the BBC's Holiday Programme.

The concert starts at 8pm and tickets cost £10 or £9 for folk mailing list members. To book, call the box office on 01634 338338 or go online at www.thebrooktheatre.co.uk.

POLKA DOT

Ongoing, Polka Dot Art Centre, Teynham

LITTER is taking over a garden in Teynham as part of an artistic project by Polka Dot.

Artists Sioux Peto and Colin Barnard made some very intriguing discoveries in the garden of the centre in London Road and a new entity seems to be spreading there, threatening to take over our countryside within years.

The Garden of England project is designed to raise awareness of littering, by creating a garden made out of rubbish. With the help of young people from volunteer group Vinolved, the artists had a busy weekend creating brightly coloured growths using rubbish. The ongoing project can be seen at Polka Dot throughout the summer and the artists hope it will make people think about what littering does to the environment.

"If we don't stop littering, nature will take matters into her own hands and mutate into the life forms that can now be seen in the Polka Dot garden!" Peto said.

Polka Dot Art Centre is open from 10am to 4pm every Saturday, but is also open for associated workshops. For more information about events there, visit www.polkadotac.co.uk.

MICA PARIS

Friday, July 30, Pizza Express, Maidstone

SOUL queen Mica Paris has touched the lives of her fans with both her music and her writing.

Famous for her soaring vocal talent, Paris also became a popular television personality when she hosted makeover show What Not to Wear. Moved by the stories of the women she met during filming, Paris was inspired to look at her own life and wrote a book called Beautiful Within.

Last year she released her first original studio album for 10 years, Born Again, and her first single from the album was written by James Morrison. Baby Come Back Now was a retro number which Morrison wrote specifically for Paris' remarkable voice and now fans can hear her soulful tones in the intimate atmosphere of the Music Room at Pizza Express.

After making her earliest appearances with a gospel choir, Paris progressed to becoming a backing singer and finally released her own album, the platinum-selling So Good. The album featured her first top 10 hit, You Are My One Temptation, and launched her career into orbit.

The concert starts at 8pm and tickets cost £25. To book, visit www.pizzaexpresslive.com.

Go wild in the country as you forage for food on hotel break

■ BY TOM BETTS

OWNERS of a Kent hotel are urging guests to embrace their wild side.

Staff at the acclaimed Walleth's Court Hotel, in St Margarets-at-Cliffe, near Dover, have launched a new Hunter and Forager experience for those who want to delve deeper into the countryside.

The trips will enable guests the chance to get an authentic taste of just what is on offer in the surrounding area.

Run by experts Gavin Oakley and Peter Kelly, two men with a background in rural pursuits, the experience combines two aspects of rural life with an interesting day out.

Typically, guests stay in one of the two well-equipped outdoor teepees and are woken by the guides early for a day to remember.

At dawn the pair lead small parties into the countryside near Dover to track down and hunt game such as rabbits and pigeons.

Peter, who has represented his country at shooting, said: "It's a very interesting experience for guests. We teach them how to use the guns before actually hunting for food."

Once a few specimens have been bagged with a 12-bore shotgun, they are taken back to the hotel, where you can learn how to cook and prepare the food.

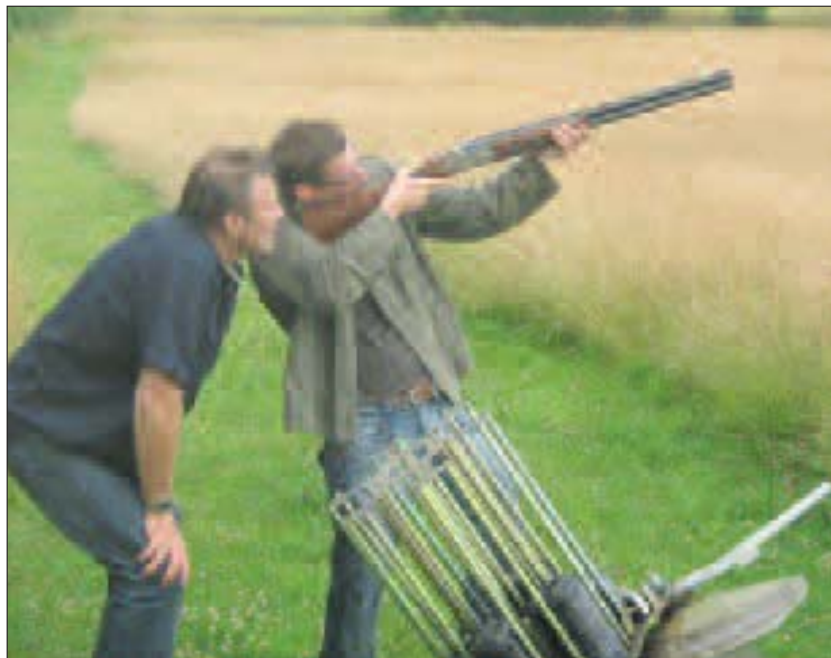

The head chef at Walleth's Court, Ryan Tasker, leads the demonstrations, which include plucking birds and skinning rabbits, before cooking up dishes such as ballotine of rabbit with summer white-truffle emulsion.

After lunch and drinks, Gavin takes over and leads out parties to forage for food.

The range of what is available soon becomes clear as the walk winds its way from the hotel, heading into the South Foreland valley across the stunning coastline, before finishing down in St Margaret's Bay, where more foraging takes place in the rock-pools.

Guests will gather fare such as wild fennel, crab apples, wild cabbage, horseradish, sea lettuce, sea beet and sea purslane along the way.

Gavin said: "The food that is available free, growing naturally, is often overlooked. It's surprising what you can find to eat right under your noses. The countryside around St Margaret's is full of delicious produce."

"For me it's really enjoyable to show people just what is here. Growing up in the area, I have learned just what can be foraged and eaten."

As with the hunting part of the day, the food that has been collected is then taken back to Walleth's Court for a foragers' supper, with dishes such as sea bream with an olive and caper sauce and crushed new potatoes with spinach and wild fennel foam with sea lettuce.

Gavin said: "Seeing some of the ingredients that you have brought back land on the table in front of you is very satisfying. It really brings home just how much we can gather from the land around us."

"We hope these trips will take off. Everyone is welcome to book. We have led some successful test excursions to see if people enjoyed it and the results have been really positive."

For more information about the Hunter and Forager break, phone the hotel on 01304 852424 or check out the website at www.wallethscourthotel.com.

FOOD FOR FREE: Clockwise from above, Tom Betts lines up a shot, guided by Peter Kelly; head chef Ryan prepares a freshly shot and skinned rabbit; the resultant ballotine of rabbit; and leaders Gavin Oakley and Peter Kelly

WANNABE CHEFS: Former World Cup footballers Carlton Palmer, Neil Ruddock, Frank Worthington and John Fashanu got highly competitive in the kitchen

YOUR TV REVIEW

COME DINE WITH ME: Channel 4, from 12.50pm weekdays
HOLBY CITY: BBC1, 8pm Tuesday

■ BY TOM BETTS

A COUPLE of years ago, when Come Dine With Me first appeared on our screens, I slated it.

Writing in this column, I labelled the whole thing "idiotic", but I may have been too quick to judge.

In fact, I was plain wrong because I now believe it to be a work of art.

It has spawned many imitators, as most successful TV shows do, and the inevitable celebrity version arrived quicker than you could say 'John Fashanu has just goosed Carlton Palmer'.

It is the standard episodes, though, featuring the fearless and foolhardy Great British Public, that usually work the best.

Never underestimate just how cringeworthy a 40-something estate agent wanting to impress with his pan-fried turbot and wild rocket salad can be.

Narrator Dave Lamb guides the viewer through the episode, dispensing disparaging remarks along the way, and is usually good for a few laughs.

It's an easy enough job, as the amateur cooks competing for what seems like a pretty measly £1,000 prize do more than enough to make utter plebs of themselves.

If you haven't tuned in before, then do so just once, if only to remind yourself never to hold a dinner party.

LIVING in Holby is a dangerous business. You're dicing with death every time you wake up in the fictional town.

It doesn't matter who you are – expect the grim reaper or serious injury to come knocking sooner rather than later.

Better to stay in bed, although you're likely to become entangled in your duvet and suffocate to death.

Mind you, it might be preferable to be stabbed in the jugular falling on to a block of kitchen knives or to meet your maker by drowning face down in a bowl of cookie dough than suffer the ignominy of being admitted to Holby City General.

The staff are a horrible bunch.

Engaged in extra-marital affairs, back-stabbing and general moaning and nastiness, they make the EastEnders cast look like a clean-cut bunch of high moral standing.

If the NHS really is like this, then we must crack on with privatisation.

Naturally, my mother, who loves all things medical, tragic and repetitive, is addicted to it.

MOTORS NEWS

Summer countdown to Corsa's massive cuts

VAUXHALL'S popular Corsa supermini is being offered for less than £8,000 as the headline deal in the brand's Big Summer Countdown until July 31.

The tempting package is on the Corsa S 1.0-litre three-door model and under Vauxhall's Swappage Support part exchange scheme – it represents a £3,035 saving over its list price of £11,030.

Vauxhall marketing chief Peter Hope said: "The terrific deals being offered are exemplified by the new Corsa being made available for less than £8,000."

Crossover flagship now has a diesel alternative

NISSAN appears nigh on unstoppable in the hatchback/MPV/SUV crossover sector it identified with the successful Qashqai.

It will shortly launch a baby version called the Juke and has brought out a revision of the big Murano SUV as a flagship crossover to sit above the pair of them.

This time the muscular Murano is also offered with diesel power, a 190PS (188bhp) 2.5-litre that can average around 35mpg and expected to cater for 90 per cent of sales – it can be ordered now from £37,795.

Mean and miserly VW wins green car award

VOLKSWAGEN'S ultra green Golf 1.6 TDI 105 BlueMotion five-door was voted Car of the Year at the What Car? magazine's Green Awards.

What Car? editor-in-chief Steve Fowler said: "Volkswagen has built a hugely desirable car that's big on ability, but small on running costs. The Golf BlueMotion does an enviable 74.3mpg and emits just 99g/km of CO<sub>2</sub>, which means it is exempt from road tax, while company car tax will be based on just 13 per cent of its £18,685 list price. It's a package that's hard to beat."

TIME TRAVELLER: Kia's Ceed comes with a seven-year/100,000-mile warranty, but the real news is the option of an effective stop-and-go system that's currently the market leader

Kia's warranties are all set to reach warp seven

KIA continues to bend time like no other manufacturer. It seems only yesterday that I drove a previous generation Kia Rio (2001-05) and lamented many failings and, the final insult, a break down.

But that car is light years behind the Korean brand's Ford Focus challenger, the Ceed (from £12,150) launched in 2007, and recently given a makeover.

It arrived then with a mould-breaking seven-year/100,000-mile warranty – the perfect lure for sceptical punters with the tried and tested Focus, VW Golf and Vauxhall Astra in their sights, but also a potentially expensive gamble.

It wasn't though, and Kia has since decided to offer a seven-year 'top-up' on used Ceed sold through its dealers – that's confidence – and all new Kias now come with a seven-year warranty too.

Aware that the 2007-vintage Ceed could be fidgety, Kia also tweaked the facelift car's handling in that relatively short time span and brushed it up inside and out – notably with a sleeker and more upmarket grille.

Green rating	★★★★★

The real news is the option of an effective automatic stop-and-go system that kills the engine at the lights or when stopped in heavy traffic and then smoothly re-starts it again.

Known as Intelligent Stop and Go (ISG) it is one of the market's best systems and offered on the car's junior 89bhp 1.6-litre/six-speed manual diesel powertrain (£14,500) tested here and wearing Kia's new green 'EcoDynamics' sub-branding with energy-saving tyres.

This environmentally-friendly Ceed has an official combined fuel consumption of 67.3mpg and CO<sub>2</sub> emissions of just 110g/km – no road tax for year one and just £20/year thereafter.

The same powertrain without the eco stuff saves £1,325 and still averages in the mid-60s for mpg and with the same road tax benefits.

But that's with 'Ceed 1' trim, still giving air con and generous standard comforts, but the dearer EcoDynamics version comes with 'Ceed 2' spec including alloys and electric mirrors, so 'going eco' is not so dear after all. And the EcoDynamics does not ask you to drive like a vegan either; with the improved handling of the Ceed range generally it's a tidy drive, smoothly powered and a triple-saver on fuel, pricing and that 'buy-it and forget-it' seven-year warranty.

PROPERTY NEWS

Gap between wages and house prices stays

THERE will continue to be a gap between rising house prices and the average wage, according to a recent study.

According to James Davis, chief executive officer of Upad.co.uk, it is getting more and more unaffordable to get on to the property ladder, as potential home buyers need large deposits.

In addition, many of the young first-time buyers out there have already graduated from university with debt of around £20,000, reducing their income further still.

"If you put all those bits together, renting is an increasingly preferred form of tenure rather than going into the housing market," Mr Davis explained.

All of this means that there is now less of a taboo surrounding renting than there has been which, combined with a lack of adequate rental stock, means good news for buy-to-let investors, he concluded.

Almost two-thirds of people living in privately rented accommodation believe they are unlikely to buy their own home in the next five years, according to mortgage lender Kensington.

More choice as supply overtakes demand

HOUSE prices rose by three per cent in the first quarter of 2010, according to the latest figures.

Mortgage lender Halifax claims that the average cost of a UK home now stands at £170,111.

However, this represents a "period of broad stability" for the month of June, which saw a seasonally-adjusted rise of 0.1 per cent in the house prices, the financial group claims.

Reacting to the news, the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors said that the figures back up existing evidence that supply is beginning to outstrip demand in the UK property market.

Chief economist Simon Rubinsohn explained: "It is no bad thing the price picture appears to be stabilising.

"The more important issue for the market is whether this is accompanied by a pick-up in transaction activity."

All this means that, at the moment, consumers have more choice when buying a property, which Mr Rubinsohn believes is good news for the market.

DISASTROUS:

First-time buyers could be priced out of the property market if a cap on loan to value lending means they have to find deposits of 25 per cent for their first property

Lending cap sparks fear for those starting out

■ BY NICK AMES

SPECULATION that the Bank of England could introduce mortgage caps restricting how much people could borrow has put the spotlight on the plight of first-time buyers.

Some commentators pointed to new figures showing how few mortgages are available to those with a small deposit as evidence of lenders being more sensible.

There are fewer than 20 mortgage deals allowing people to borrow 95 per cent of their property's value (LTV), compared with some 1,000 three years ago.

George Osborne, the chancellor, has said the Bank is to be handed sweeping powers to curb City excesses and prevent another financial crisis.

It was widely reported this would include the power to restrict lending, potentially allowing the Bank to block consumers from borrowing too much.

This could, it was suggested, include restrictions on LTV ratios, so that people might be prevented from taking out a home loan for more than, say, 75 per cent of the property's value.

But any move to introduce a cap on lending in the mortgage market would be disastrous for the millions of borrowers who don't have a 25 per cent deposit, according to Hannah-Mercedes Skenfield at Moneysupermarket.com.

Based on mortgage searches made via the website, up to 40 per cent of people looking for a home loan have a deposit of less than 25 per cent.

Meanwhile, it is estimated that about 2.5m outstanding mortgages – approximately a quarter of the total – are for more than 75 per cent of the property's value.

"Our concern is that a blanket LTV restriction will freeze the housing market for years," said Ms Skenfield. "Although LTV is a factor when making lending decisions, it is more important to factor in affordability and judge each application on its own merits."

"For many young people looking to get a foot on the first rung of the housing ladder, a deposit of perhaps £25,000 is unthinkable, especially for those saddled with student debt, yet in many cases their mortgage repayments would be similar to the rent they are paying."

Quick response to planning application praised

EVERYONE knows that you need planning permission from the local council before you can build a new property, but sometimes this can be a very long and frustrating process.

But Hillreed Homes says it was delighted when a proposed development at Loose, near Maidstone, went through within eight weeks.

"It was an exceptional turnaround and Maidstone planning office should be praised for making such a good job of the application", said Colin Creed, managing director.

"In the South East, there is always a very strong need for homes and often developers cannot build them quickly enough to satisfy demand.

"Currently, we have several proposed sites waiting for planning permission throughout the South East", said Mr Creed.

"Many of the homes we are currently building and marketing are under offer or bought off plan and because of this pent up requirement, we are keen to have more developments in progress at any one time, but without full planning we cannot proceed.

"It is frustrating at the moment as we are well into summer and are almost running out of houses ready for immediate occupation."

The advertiser also accepts and agrees that this action would not reduce the value or cost of their membership. Any cost of changes required to the TV commercial throughout the advertiser's agreement will be borne by the advertiser outside of this agreement.
- Each advertiser accepts that their ranking and position within KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd's search engine will be equal to those within their category (Platinum, Gold, Silver, Bronze, etc) other than they will be ranked based on the search engine criteria of optimisation within their level (Platinum, Gold, Silver or Bronze).
- Any delivery claims made by the advertiser or discount vouchers published within the print or online media of KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd and any action as a result of the public or otherwise is the sole responsibility of the advertiser. c. In the event that payment is not received by KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd by the due date, the media owner reserves the right to charge interest on all overdue balances calculated on a daily basis at the rate of two per cent above the minimum lending rate of National Westminster Bank Plc from time to time in force.
d. Notwithstanding anything in these terms and conditions or implied to the contrary, in the event of the Advertiser ceasing to use the services of KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd (for whatever reason), the whole amount of monies due from the Advertiser to the date of cessation shall fall due for immediate payment.
e. The Advertiser will be liable for all costs incurred by KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd in the recovery of debts not paid by the due date.
f. Payment may be made by cheque, credit transfer, direct debit, cash and any major credit card.
- Any discount which KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd may have agreed with the Advertiser shall be forfeited in the event of failure by the Advertiser to complete the contract or to meet the above credit terms.
- Advertising Agency commission will be allowed to those advertisers recognised by the Newspaper Society, but shall not exceed ten per cent and will be subject to the terms of that recognition. This commission will not be allowed if the Advertising Agency fails to meet the terms.

CRICKET

BY TOM HOWARD

Kent League Premier Division

The Mote 1st XI v Gore Court 1st XI

THE MOTE are just three points off top spot in the Premier Division after recording a 43-run win against basement side Gore Court.

With the sides battling at different ends of the table, the game on paper looked set up for a comfortable Mote win, but the hosts were made to work hard for the points.

The Mote elected to bat first and Howard Waters (39) and skipper Thomas Harvey (20) put on a first wicket partnership of 67. James Hodgson added 36, but he was stopped short of a half-century when he was caught by Phil Edwards off Paul Muchall.

Century

However, the performance of the day belonged to James Marriott, who hit 113 from 112 deliveries, to put The Mote in a commanding position. His century helped push The Mote to 306 for 8 at the end of 50 overs.

Not to be out done, Gore Court impressed with the bat as Kent batsman Sam Northeast hit an excellent hundred. His 103 gave the visitors renewed hope of chasing down The Mote's target.

However, a steady stream of wickets hampered their chances and it was left to skipper Karl Pearson to steady the ship. His 65 gave Court a flicker of hope but the remaining batsmen were unable to keep scoring at the required run rate. Court finished on 263 for 7.

Harvey's side could move into top spot with a victory against league leaders St Lawrence & Highland Court this weekend.

KENT LEAGUE DIVISION FIVE

Offham 1st XI v Bapchild 1st XI

A SEVEN-wicket haul by Leonard Watt helped Offham set up a 54-run victory at home to Bapchild.

After a slow start, Offham raced to 220 for 8 from their 50 overs with Graham Razez's 74 from 86 balls the high-light of the innings.

Bapchild made a steady start to their reply through Joshua Hunt (52) and Lincoln Bryden (23), before Watt struck. Once he dismissed the pair, the innings began to crumble as he took five more wickets to help bowl Bapchild out for 162.

KENT REGIONAL LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP EAST

Yalding 1st XI v Old Williamsonsians 1st XI

HUGO Parnell fell four runs short of a deserved century as Old Williamsonsians beat Yalding by three wickets at the weekend.

Yalding put together a reasonable total of 155 from their innings, which started in a promising fashion with Alistair Ratcliff's knock of 45.

However, the hosts appeared to be facing a one man team, as Parnell kept his head to smash 96 while wickets fell around him at regular intervals. Only two more batsmen reached double figures, but it was enough to condemn Yalding to a defeat.

KENT REGIONAL LEAGUE 1A CENTRAL

Leeds &amp; Broomfield 1st XI v Borstal 1st XI

LEEDS & Broomfield continue to dominate Regional League 1A Central after recording a 72-run win against Borstal.

Half-centuries from Aaron Bailey (63) and Max Aitken (68) played a large part in the home side posting an impressive 256 for 6 from their allotted 46 overs.

Borstal responded well to the task in hand and Dave Tingley's stunning 123 gave the visitors hope. However, it wasn't to be, as Leeds & Broomfield dismissed them for 179. Adrian Samson was the pick of the bowlers with figures of 5 for 39.

KENT LEAGUE DIVISION THREE

Old Colfeians 1st XI v Addington Village 1st XI

RAY Van Schoor and Duncan Brown came agonisingly close to recording well deserved hundreds as Addington Village completed a 77-run victory on Saturday.

The Division Three league leaders made a less than convincing start to the game with openers Will Jeffery (2) and James Tooze (6) departing early. Van Schoor (99) and Brown (93) turned the tables with a valuable partnership as the visitors closed on 282 for 6.

With 283 to chase down, Old Colfeians needed a fast start which failed to materialise. Irfan Begg's 82 kept Colfeians in the game, but they were eventually dismissed for 205.

'Mystified' Stones are caught in the crossfire

FOOTBALL

BY FRED ATKINS & TOM HOWARD

MAIDSTONE United have denied any wrongdoing in response to an alleged breach of the club's ground-share agreement with Ashford Town.

The Ryman Premier League side, who agreed to a three-year ground-share deal at Ashford's Homelands stadium last summer, have been the accused of an alleged violation regarding the illegal use of a commercial satellite television at the ground by their Ryman South landlords.

Ashford chairman Don Crosbie posted a further statement on their official website on Monday saying the ground-share agreement had been terminated. The statement also included details of the alleged breach including a possible penalty fine for the club of up to £5,000 per occurrence.

The Stones have moved quickly to categorically deny any breach of the agreement.

The latest statement reads: "Maidstone United FC totally refute the contents of this latest statement. The board of the Isthmian League were made aware of the club's position when the original statement was posted on www.ashfordtown.co.uk. Since that date the club have involved the officials of the league throughout. The club would like to reassure supporters that resolving this issue is a top priority and it will be handled in a professional manner."

Maidstone chairman Paul Bowden-Brown believes the club have been caught in the crossfire of an increasingly bitter legal dispute between Ashford co-owners, Crosbie and Tony Betteridge.

FUMING: Stones chairman Paul Bowden-Brown (inset) has been angered by allegations made by landlords Ashford Town, while Adrian Stone (main picture, centre) scores against Erith & Belvedere in the club's first pre-season game of the summer

Town are currently dealing with an ongoing winding up petition and are suspended from all football by the Football Association after failing to pay loan fees dating back to last season.

"I'm fuming, this is the last thing we needed," Bowden-Brown said. "I've written to them [Ashford] saying it should be removed."

"I've got no idea what the violation is. All I can tell you is I've written to the directors of Ashford Town about my concerns that such a statement should go online."

"The league and I are not aware of any breach of an agreement and Tony Betteridge has replied saying he's not aware."

Betteridge said he had no idea why the statement had been released. "I've been frozen out," he said. "I'm not privy to what goes on at the business end of Ashford Town."

The Stones played their first pre-season friendly on Saturday which saw Peter Nott's side record a 1-1 draw at Kent League outfit Erith & Belvedere.

The home side opened the scoring through Marcus Cassius, who headed in from close range.

Maidstone should have equalised early in the second-half when new signing Marc Cumberbatch won a penalty but fellow new recruit Jake Hobbs' spot-kick was saved. United eventually found an equaliser through Adrian Stone with 20 minutes remaining.

The Stones were at Dover last night. Log on to www.yourmaidstone.co.uk for a report.

HIGH RISE: Chris Smalling was playing for Maidstone United little more than two years ago

Ferguson praises ex-Stone Smalling after mixed debut

FORMER Stone Chris Smalling received praise from Sir Alex Ferguson after a mixed debut for Manchester United on Friday night.

The central defender, who came through the youth ranks to star at Maidstone United, featured for new club, Manchester United, in a 3-1 win against Scottish giants Celtic in a pre-season friendly in Toronto.

The 20-year-old, who agreed to join Ferguson's United from Fulham for a fee in the region of £8 million in January, finally joined up with his new side last month.

The former Chatham Grammar pupil played alongside Jonny Evans in the centre of defence, but his debut wasn't plain sailing after giving away a penalty for a challenge on Celtic's Joe Ledley.

Despite the error, United boss Sir Alex felt his new signing emerged with credit.

His debut for United marks yet another step in the rapid rise of the defender, who was lining up for Maidstone United in the Ryman Premier League just over two years ago.

Sir Alex said: "I was pleased with Chris. We know he's a good footballer; we know he is quick and a good passer of the ball."

"There was a period after half-time when he had two fantastic headers with great purpose and showed his aerial ability."

"He got caught a little bit with the penalty. The player ran from his blind side in behind him. But he's young, he's only 20."

Smalling could feature for United again on Sunday when they play Major League Soccer side Kansas City Wizards.

McPherson rues those second round mistakes

SHOWJUMPING

EXPERIENCED showjumper David McPherson was part of the Great Britain squad that finished eighth in the Meydan FEI Nations Cup last week.

The 50-year-old from Maidstone was part of a five-man squad that went up against some of the best riders in Europe in what is the European Cup of showjumping.

McPherson, riding his nine-year-old gelding Chamberlain Z, jumped well in the first round, but mistakes proved costly in his second round.

The rest of squad failed to jump a clear round and a time fault for teammate John Whittaker saw Great Britain finish the competition in a disappointing eighth spot. Great Britain have now dropped to fourth in the overall rankings.

Performance manager Rob Hoekstra said: "We are naturally disappointed with the result from Aachen, however we are also aware that we are still in a favourable position on the leader board. Our strategy has always been to finish in the top six overall after Dublin and we will fight to the end to ensure that we are."

McPherson will head to Hickstead in West Sussex for the British round of the Nation Cup series on July 29.

Reeves hangs on to close sidecar championship gap

MOTORSPORT

TIM Reeves closed the gap in the World Sidecar Championship title race after finishing second at the German round of the series on Sunday.

The Maidstone-based rider has endured a mixed season so far which has been dominated by mechanical issues, but a strong performance at the Sachsenring circuit moved him within 20 points of the championship lead.

The weekend started with Reeves and passenger Gregory Cluze struggling to rectify technical problems on the bike, but the pair fixed the issues just in time for Saturday's qualifying session.

The 38-year-old produced one of his best results of the season by earning pole position, two tenths of a second faster than the British pair of Tom and Ben Birchall. Championship leaders Pekka Paivarinta and Adolf Hänni were back in fourth.

Reeves was unable to hold on to the lead into the first corner as German rider Kurt Hock stormed to the front of the pack from the second row of the grid. Hock quickly established a comfortable lead and Reeves soon had his mirrors full of a hard charging Paivarinta.

The three-time world champion was forced to defend for the remainder of the race and managed to successfully hold on to second spot at the chequered flag.

Elsewhere, Maidstone's Scott Smart had another weekend to forget as an infringement saw him disqualified from the British Superstock Series race at Snetterton.

Maidstone Grammar schoolboy Tom Weeden finished eighth in class in the British 125cc Championship.
